The other four pledges have devoted most of their time to work on The Cherry Tree, University yearbook.

Initiation, followed by a banquet, will be held in January.

To Kiss or Not to Kiss—? Co-eds Deny Man's Right

By Frank Ford Burnett

Men of G. W., what are we men or mice? Lovers or gigolos? The right to kiss—it is a right, not a privilege—has been challenged by Betty Co-ed, who is collectively and individually saying a farewell to arms on camp from coast to coast. Before Betty of G. W. gets the jump on us, men, we must act.

To kiss or not to kiss, that is the question. Whether 'tis nobler on the campus to suffer the slighting whims of super-sophisticated co-eds; to eschew their embraces, or take arms against this new crop of feminine trouble, and by opposing, end them.

Attack Begun at Utah

This unprecedented attack on man's ancient prerogative began in the University of Utah, where the female of the species (more deadly than the male) have gone on "strike" refusing to kiss—or be kissed. There is more to this insidi-

The complete summer school bulletin, with various new classes listed, particularly in the School of Education, went to press yesterday. It was announced by the Dean of Summer Sessions, Robert W. Bolwell.

It will probably be ready for use shortly before the Christmas vacations.

Three new members of the School of Education faculty for the summer sessions were announced. They are Mary A. Adams, Sidney B. Hall, and Chester W. Holmes, all of whom have had wide experience in their respective fields.

Miss Adams, M. A., of Johns Hopkins University, is principal of the Montebello Demonstration School of Baltimore. She has taught at the summer sessions of the University of Rochester and Johns Hopkins, as well as in the Division of Industrial Education of the University of Maryland. She is co-author with Mabel Simpson of "Growth in English" for grades 3-7.

She will offer three method courses in the field of elementary

Unionists Ask Popular Vote If War Starts

Foreign Relations Report
Will Be Considered
Tomorrow

An amendment to the constitution requiring a three-fourths vote of Congress and a two-thirds vote of the people to declare war will be submitted tomorrow evening to the Union for discussion. The meeting will be in Stockton 30 at 8:15.

Features of the majority resolution, to be submitted with the amendment, recommend strict neutrality legislation, define restrictions on U. S. trade in event of war, and advocate a strict isolationist policy, according to James Speer, chairman.

Judiciary Bill

Preceding consideration of this bill, the Union will devote one hour to a discussion and vote on the judiciary committee's report held over from the inaugural meeting. This deals with an amendment to the constitution giving Congress several powers prohibited at present.

The resolution leads, with the statement that the President shall immediately proclaim a state of hostilities exists when such is the case, without formal declaration of war.

As a result of the last Left meeting, it is understood that the party will submit an amendment opposing this neutrality measure because of impracticability and it would be inimicable to the best interests of the country.

Women's Honor Society Initiates Outstanding Five

Alpha Lambda Delta, national honorary scholastic fraternity for women, initiated five women last Wednesday at a banquet at the Admiral Club. Scholastic average for entrance into this group must not be less than 3.5 for either the first semester or the total freshman year's work.

Miss Lillian Friedman, with an index of 3.88, led the list. Other initiates and their indices are: Louise Garred, 3.75; Marie Ann Greenough, 3.66; Helen K. Hoyem, 3.50; and Virginia Dawson, 3.50.

Initiation was followed by the banquet and election of the following officers: Phoebe Jane Beall, president; Virginia Dawson, secretary; Helen Hoyem, secretary; Muriel Merelman, treasurer, and Marie Ann Greenough, social chairman.

Alpha Lambda Delta was organized at the University of Illinois, May 21, 1924.

Radio Players, Cue & Curtain Are Combined

Group Will Be Taken Over
As Separate Part of Drama Club

Two Comedies and Two
Dramas Will Be Produced This Year

Encouraged by the enthusiastic reception accorded "See Naples and Die," its first effort of the season, Cue and Curtain last week voted approval of the proposal to take over the activities of Radio Players as a separate department of the drama club.

The Radio Players of Cue and Curtain, as the new organization will be known, will produce two comedies and two dramas during the school year. These will be presented in the interim between Cue and Curtain's regular productions to avoid any conflict.

Participation in two radio productions will be considered the equivalent of a part in one regular Cue and Curtain production toward active membership in the club. It was decided that writing a play and assisting in its production would qualify the author for active membership in Cue and Curtain, subject to approval by the club's production board.

One-act plays to be given at meetings of members only, were approved by the society, and Lawrence Beckerman, chairman, Maxine Mitchell, Edward Stevington, and Charles Turner were appointed as the committee of supervision. Steve Porter, chairman, Elizabeth Mickey, and Ben Candland were named as the committee to make necessary arrangements for obtaining keys for active members of Cue and Curtain.

The club selected "Post Road" and "Granite" as the two plays for presentation to the committee on forensics and dramatics, which will approve one of the plays for the next production.

In addition to this Dr. Fishbein is also foreign correspondent of the Belgian Medical Press and a member of the Chicago Pathological Society, American Publication Health Association, Alpha Omega Alpha and the Chicago Literary Club.

ties, Sororities

The Junior College Council is donating the University's first Christmas tree this week.

The tree will be placed at the rear of Lisner Hall and will be dedicated tomorrow at 4:45 with appropriate ceremony. Dean Keyser will turn on the lights of the tree and make a talk in keeping with the occasion.

A series of three rallies is being held this week for the benefit of the Food Drive, the first having been scheduled for tomorrow and the third for Thursday. The band, under the direction of Leon Brusiloff, is donating its services for the rallies, and Christmas carols will be played in keeping with the spirit of the season.

Preliminary reports from various fraternities and groups of the university have shown encouraging response. I. Ray Howard and Sis

J. H. Forshe, Washington representative for the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, will address the student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers on "Oil Lubrication," in Corcoran 17 tomorrow at 8 p. m.

The address will be followed by the election of a representative to the Engineers' Council to replace Louis Reznick who recently resigned.

Next Hatchet on Jan. 5

There will be no issues of The Hatchet during the Christmas holidays. The next issue will appear Jan. 5. The entire staff should appear for regular work Jan. 3 with assignments complete. Assignments will be posted tomorrow.

Contributions Welcomed By Annual Food Drive

Contributions from the pockets of G. W.'s professors and students will be used by the Food Drive Committee to make happy on Christmas those who are too often neglected.

On Christmas eve members of the Social Service Committee of the drive and of the sociological department of the school will travel paths new to most of them. Three hundred baskets of food will be taken into Washington's dearer reaches in an effort to brighten the holiday for those too often neglected and too frequently hungry.

No more poignant a lesson on life's realities could be found. Hungry-eyed urchins, both black and white, will watch these strangers as they carry to drafty hovels bundles the size of which many of them have never seen. Shouts of happy purveyors of good cheer and hearty faces will brighten as they see their burdens lightened even for only a few days.

Julia Evans Gets Award for "Life Of Davis" Essay

Julia Evans, member of The Hatchet staff, last week won an award for the best essay on the "Life of Jefferson Davis" in a contest sponsored by the Jefferson Davis Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy of the District of Columbia.

Miss Evans entered the University in September as a freshman. She is a Kappa pledge. Besides her interest in school activities, she is president of the Charles M. Steadman Chapter of the Children of the Confederacy.

Students For Regulation Of Public Utilities

Government Ownership
Opposed at High School
Conference

Favoring more effective government regulation of electric utilities as a means of correcting existing abuses, and continuation of the present system under which both government-owned and privately owned electric utilities exist, but opposing complete government ownership, 200 students from 17 senior high schools in Washington, Maryland, and Virginia, met last week in the University's fourth annual conference for senior high school students.

The conference is an annual event held under the auspices of the University's department of public speaking, to give high school students in this region the opportunity to hear outstanding speakers and to engage in parliamentary discussion of important public questions.

This year the conference considered the question, "Should all electric utilities be governmentally owned and operated?" Dr. Harry W. Laidler, executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, spoke for the affirmative; and Frank A. Newton, of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation.

Ennis of the School of Engineering was unanimously elected chairman of the annual conference of counselors and branch chairmen of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers for the year beginning Aug. 1, 1937, at this year's conference held at Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

Ben Coleman Heads Council Constitutional By-Law Group

Rochelle, Gardner Also Named to Interfraternity Committee

Coleman Outlines Plans for Making Revision of Constitution

Ben Coleman, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, was appointed chairman of the constitution and bylaws committee of the Interfraternity Council Sunday with the express purpose of revising and expanding the present constitution of that body. Other members of the committee are William Rochelle, Kappa Sigma, and Casper Gardner, Kappa Alpha.

In outlining his plans for the work of the committee Coleman states: "The present constitution of the Interfraternity Council will be merely altered and revised to meet existing conditions which give rise to problems among the fraternity groups. It now becomes necessary to write these additions and changes into the constitution proper. Many parts of the present document, however, will be retained; their content would meet any occasion of either ordinary or emergency circumstances."

Probably of more immediate interest to the fraternity groups will be a revision of the rushing rules. Chairman Coleman said that the committee will hold weekly sessions if necessary in order to present to the council a set of rushing rules that will be more generally acceptable and effective.

Committee hearings will begin immediately after the Christmas holidays. A representative of each fraternity will appear before the committee to state his fraternity's view on this important question and to offer any suggestions toward the improvement of the rushing rules.

It is expected that general financial regulations of the council will be more strictly laid down. Motions were passed at the last meeting of the council ordering appropriations to be made from the treasury only upon previous sanction of the council, and ordering the treasurer to render a detailed financial statement quarterly to each chapter represented on the council.

Table tennis was added to the list of interfraternity sports. This sport is the only one that will be for the most part played in the individual houses of the competitors and will add the council in realizing more fully its aim of promoting close relationships between fraternal groups.

Radio Players Cast Selected

McVicker, Burnett, Cast in
"Satan's Headache," Farce Comedy

Charles McVicker, as Faust, and Frank Ford Burnett, as Satan, were selected in auditions Sunday as the leads in "Satan's Headache," or "Something New Under the Sod," to be broadcast over station WMAL early in January by the Radio Players of Cue and Curtain.

Others in the cast are: Flora Blumenthal, as Miss Peters; Florence Evelyn Rice, as Miss Simpson; Hamilton Colt, as Mephistopheles; Tom Enzor, as Charon; Charles Grunwell, as Beelzebub; and Bill Ferguson, as a musician. Ferguson will also handle the sound effects.

"Satan's Headache" is a farce by Robert D. Swezey, and is the first of four plays which will be produced by the reorganized Radio Players, which last week were incorporated into the Cue and Curtain dramatic organization. The other three plays—a comedy and two serious dramas—have been tentatively selected from scripts written in the Creative Writing class, Douglas Bement, of the English Department, has said.

Swezey's play is a modern adaptation of the Faustian legend. Faust, a Wall Street executive, sells his soul to Satan in order to achieve success in business. Satan brings him success, and then forecloses on Faust, taking him off to Hades. The fun begins when Faust sets up business methods in the infernal regions. Satan finally sees that he has made a bad bargain, and sends Faust back to earth.

Giving Greater Than Receiving

THE Hatchet considers it a privilege to have this opportunity to wish the Administration, the faculty, and the student body the merriest Christmas ever, and a successful and productive New Year. But in an effort to obtain the apex of enjoyment throughout the holiday season, do not overlook the primary purpose of Christmas. Without instigating or aiding in the propagation of some kind deed to bring the Christmas spirit to another, we lose the sacred ideal of the holiday. In your haste to show affection for your friends and family, do not forget those really in need of a kindness. The Food Drive is a worthy channel through which your Christmas spirit will find a way toward the fullest appreciation.

Happy Medium Pays

SOME students plan to study throughout the entire two weeks' recess from classes. Other students have remarked that they do not expect to open a book or read a paper in the course of the vacation. Both of these methods of procedure are wrong for the average student. But men and women from the two extremes frequently make either statement. Persons who are now even ahead in all subjects do themselves an injustice to become completely indifferent for so long a time, and in so doing probably fail to obtain an excellent record. Those who are now on the brink of falling by the wayside will find much remorse when semester examinations are held if they have too good a time over the holiday. Yet those on either extreme will regret it if they tire themselves out with rigid mental discipline throughout the vacation.

Enthusiasm Self-Centered

THE proposed erection and dedication of a campus community Christmas tree decorated with lights is demonstrative of a new high in campus spirit, which has this fall already surpassed all recent records of the University. However, it is hoped that the Band, the Food Drive, and the Junior College Council, the three organizations sponsoring the Christmas tree and the rally to be held at its dedication to promote interest in the Food Drive, will not be as sadly disappointed by lack of attendance at this ceremony as were those who aided at the dance held Sunday afternoon by the Admiral Club to raise funds for the Food Drive. Although those attending the dance apparently enjoyed a good time, the size of attendance and the financial result met the same fate as did last year's Charity Ball, held for the Food Drive. Is it that we exert interest and enthusiasm only when our own benefit is at stake, and display decidedly the opposite when it is a question of the other fellow?

Who Makes Honors?

ONLY two freshmen qualified this fall for membership in Phi Eta Sigma, honorary freshman scholastic fraternity. These two freshmen were part-time students.

No full-time first-year man made the necessary 3.5 average. Why not? The answer is not that full-time students spend more time in activities than serious minded part-time students. One of the two men tapped is active in his social fraternity and a member of The Hatchet's senior staff, in addition to participation in other activities on campus. That answer will not hold; the question remains.

Arouse The Dormant

SOME weeks ago the Student Council adopted a very fine suggestion proposing a celebration in honor of the tenth anniversary of Cloyd H. Marvin's outstanding service to the University as its president. Since that time, nothing more has been said or done toward planning the occasion. Of course, to many, the school year is still young, but when the holiday season is over students will be fastening their noses to books, preparing for the examinations soon to follow. The year will then be half over, and little time will be left to plan and hold such an affair before time to prepare for spring finals.

We feel sure that the Council is anxious to hold an all-University celebration commensurate to the service to the University which it hopes to honor. Anything at all to be a success must be well thought out and planned. This requires initiative, time, and effort. But it is definitely felt that the entire student body is desirous of lending its whole-hearted cooperation in the matter if plans are submitted sufficiently early to permit it to do so.

As a suggestion for the Council to include in its plans, the arrangements for the second flagpole, which were started by last year's Senior Class, might be completed and the pole erected as a joint gift. A bronze plaque might be planned and furnished to be placed on a wall on or inside of the proposed library building. Of course, there are many suggestions along this line that might be more appropriate than either of these. But since the Student Council has voiced its intentions toward honoring our president's service, it should not let the excellent idea lie dormant.

From Today's Confusion

We In The Melting Pot Make Good Christmas Mixtures

By Margaret Davis

THE Christmas season, that delightful period of hullabaloo, makes me feel nationalistic. I can't help being glad I was born in a melting pot and am made up of German, Dutch, Welsh, English, Scotch and a finger full of Irish blood and I can't help looking with warm feeling at acquaintances whose veins course with other mixtures.

It seems in keeping with the prevailing hubbub to be a multitude of things. You can sit at the groaning table with a French pastry in one hand and a mouthful of English plum pudding in your mouth and shriek from the bottom of your heart,

"These are my own, my racial foods!"

The thoroughbred who has a simple past behind him, made up of ancestors who all lived in the same place and were born of the same race really doesn't have the proper background for the Christmas season. He is too well balanced, a perfect animal with no conflicting quirks of temperament (a point of reason which is fun to reason about, however false it may seem to the really reasonable); truly too sober and noble an individual to be properly caught by the madcap whirl of this season which gains in charm and feverishness as its different phases are emphasized by the custom and tradition of all of the races which people the earth.

And I maintain that the fellow who doesn't have it in his blood can't ever sing "O Tannenbaum" with the sound, loud, and ear drum bursting vehemence with which the guy whose great great grandmother's aunt was German can bellow it.

Not that blood does it alone. Not that blood does it at all. It's sentiment acting upon the blood—a process neither zoological nor chemical—but rather metaphysical. Which means something, and this is what.

If you're French, German, and Japanese; you can eat in French, German and Japanese; you can drink in French, German, and Japanese; and because you are French, German, and Japanese, you sing, eat, and drink in French, German, and Japanese from the bottom of your heart simply because you are a French, German, and Japanese human, and humans are sentimental about themselves for no good reason. So, if you can celebrate Christmas in French, German, and Japanese ways, in all ways from the bottom of your heart, your Christmas can't help being like a fruit cake, full, spicy, and terribly rich. Here's hoping you aren't a mono-racial blue-blood.

Cue and Curtain Becomes More Dramatic

ROBERT HOWELL

CUE AND CURTAIN met last Wednesday night and did two things which greatly extended its organization and increased its scope of functions. The club voted to extend its organization to include Radio Players, and voted to stage a series of one-act plays throughout the year.

In adding Radio Players, Cue and Curtain added an unrecognized group that has functioned under the auspices of the creative writing classes, presenting over the air plays written by members of the classes. This year four radio plays are being presented.

Radio Players has been in existence for several years. Of necessity, its organization has always been rather loose, since it has not been run as an activity, but has rather consisted of the members of any particular cast. Its plays have been secured through open tryouts, similar to those held by Cue and Curtain, but which have not attracted as many aspirants for roles.

Its addition will make Cue and Curtain a dramatic organization in a fuller sense and will give Radio Players the benefit of larger casting lists and a definite organization. Heretofore, Cue and Curtain has restricted itself to the traditional presentation of three-act plays three times a year. With Radio Players a part of its set-up it will broadcast skits at more frequent intervals than it presents the plays, thus providing a new outlet for the talent in the club while giving a larger group from which to choose casts for the radio plays.

The technical problems of production will be negligible, since no set nor costumes will be needed and facilities for most of the sound effects will be available at the broadcasting studio. Long rehearsals will not be required, since parts can be read from script over the air.

Besides adding Radio Players to its membership, Cue and Curtain provided still a larger outlet for its talent in approving the idea of a series of one-act plays. Such plays, which have been suggested by members of the club on various occasions, but which have never been undertaken due to lack of proper staging facilities and other difficulties, will provide an opportunity for virtually every member in Cue and Curtain to play at least one role.

This will be of still further benefit in that it will provide the director an opportunity to see how the actors conduct themselves on the stage when reciting a memorized part. As Director Marvin Beers pointed out at the meeting Wednesday, there is a vast difference between the way a person acts on a stage before an audience, and the way he acts at tryouts when reading. It does not follow that a good actor will be a good reader, nor that a good reader will necessarily be a good actor. Difficulties over this point will be eliminated through the use of one-act plays.

Plans regarding the one-act plays are that they will be presented at monthly meetings of the club, not before the public, and will be directed by students directors who are appointed for one play. This, of course, will provide experience in directing for students who are interested in that field.

They will be simple presentations, requiring few properties, thus avoiding the trouble of building a set for each play and making production an easier task.

Appropriately enough, at the meeting where Cue and Curtain took these steps, the largest attendance at any meeting in the history of the club was present. The 50-odd members there compared favorably with meetings in former years when there were sometimes more officers than members present, and gave evidence that Cue and Curtain is now going forward.

Glee Club Sing's With Symphony; Bauer Praised

By Tatyana Jasny

FORTUNATELY for the George Washington University Glee Club, its first official appearance this year was on one of the National Symphony's best programs, which consisted entirely of Beethoven selections.

This program was a fine attempt in musical balance, but the orchestra did not master it. Hans Kindler conducted the first piece, the Coriolanus Overture with his usual pomp and with an obvious lack of spirit. The strong parts of the work, suggesting the heroic figure of a Roman warrior, lacked definiteness, thus losing the contrast of the very soft and melodious second theme.

Trying very hard in the concerto which followed, Harold Bauer achieved commendable results except for occasional virtuoso exercises that did not need the emphasis he gave them.

This concerto, one of Beethoven's earlier works, clearly shows in certain sections the influence of old masters such as Mozart. However, the later style of Beethoven is already clearly visible.

The Overture to Egmont was the only really famous part of the program, and its interpretation seemed most successful, the possible reason being that it is so well known.

The Choral Fantasy the vocal part of which the Glee Club performed very well with clearness and consciousness, formed the last part of the program. This work is musically unique, combining in a relatively short piece a piano solo, orchestral sections, and a finale with chorus, orchestra and piano. Particularly striking is the occurrence of a melody that later on was developed to form one of the most glorious motifs known: the Joy Chorus from the fourth movement of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony. Seemingly that melody kept working in the composer's mind for many years until he found the final and perfect form for it.

Dix W. Price To Represent Forensic Club

Dix W. Price has been chosen to represent the Washington chapter of the National Forensic Society when the organization meets for its national convention at the Hotel Statler in St. Louis, Dec. 31 to Jan. 2.

Henry Lee Ewbank, national president, from the University of Wisconsin, has invited a delegate from each chapter in the United States to attend the meeting as the guest of the society.

Price, considered by several to be one of the University's best debate leaders, has had considerable experience in debating, having taken seven semesters of inter-collegiate debating, four of which have been here. He represented the University in the annual international debate from England in 1934 and 1935 and was last year elected president of the local organization. He is to represent the last of this month.

Dr. Willard H. Yeager is acting faculty adviser for the chapter here.

Ormandy Gives Washington 2nd Symphony Treat

By Milton Salkind

WASHINGTON was presented Tuesday evening with what was a highlight of the current musical season, the second in a series of concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra. Eugene Ormandy opened a highly competent performance with Wagner's "Eine Faust Overture." Although there are those who still bemoan the absence of Stokowski, it cannot be denied that Mr. Ormandy gave to this vociferous music all that it deserved.

Mischa Elman, the guest artist of the evening, featured the concert with a fine, sympathetic interpretation of Tchaikovsky's D major concerto for violin and orchestra. The light swinging canzonetta is written in the finest mood of Tchaikovsky, almost entirely devoid of the sentimentality which we occasionally find in his music. This criticism will no doubt be a slight disappointment to those who love to classify music into tiny water-tight compartments, with such statements as "Tchaikovsky is melancholy, Bach 'cold and dull'."

With the playing of the Brahms 2nd symphony, Mr. Ormandy convinced the Washington audience of his qualifications for conducting the Philadelphia orchestra. In what is probably the most painfully beautiful of all his symphonies, Brahms gave all the serene consciousness of his existence as an artist, and both conductor and orchestra were equal to the occasion.

Whatever we may feel about the profundities reached in this symphony as compared with others of Brahms, the last movement reveals some of the finest subtleties of which man has been capable of expressing in music, and only superlative terms can be used in describing this rendition by Mr. Ormandy and the orchestra.

Faculty Support Brings Delight To Student Body

Professor Norris I. Crandall, Executive Officer, Department of Art, Dear Professor Crandall:

Please notify the members of your department that no classes will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 20, 1937. Inauguration Day has always been recognized as a holiday in Washington.

It has been suggested that a movement aiming toward the curtailment of exchanging Christmas cards by members of the staff be started in the faculties with the further aim of devoting the money thus saved to worthy charities. This is an interesting suggestion, but it is too late in the season to take action on it this year. Instead, the Food Drive, sponsored by the student body, is recommended to the members of the faculties for support.

The Christmas Food Drive is rapidly becoming a tradition in the George Washington University. This is both a worthy and a reliable charity. It is worthy because the families to whom the food baskets go are sorely in need of Christmas cheer and it is reliable, first, because the names of the families are obtained from the organizations in the Community Chest, and, second, because each case is rechecked by a representative of our student body.

The deans or their secretaries will gladly transmit contributions to the authorized student officers.

Sincerely yours,
W. C. RUEDIGER,

Pledge Prom Will Be Held In Raleigh Hotel Jan. 15

Council Rules Corsages
Must Be Checked
With Wraps

THE Interfraternity Pledge Prom, sponsored by the Interfraternity Pledge Council, will be held on Jan. 15 from 10 until 2 at the Raleigh Hotel. Nelson Monies, social chairman of the Council, made this announcement Sunday.

The prom will take on the characteristics of a battle of music between a well known local orchestra and an equally adept out-of-town group whose names will be announced later. The dance will take place in the newly decorated upper ball room of the hotel, which is equipped with a new public address system.

The admission price, which depends on the expenditure incurred in producing the affair, was tentatively set at $2.50 per couple, but is under discussion and probably will be less when the final decision is made.

The Council has ruled that all corsages will have to be checked at the door, so those attending should seriously consider before rashly squandering hard-earned cash on flowers.

WAA Convention Draws Delegates Of 22 Schools

Ninety-two girls representing 22 senior high schools and private schools in Washington and vicinity attended a conference on girls' athletics sponsored by Students of Teacher Training Course in Physical Education and the Women's Athletic Association Saturday in Corcoran Hall.

At 10 a.m. at a general meeting after Dean Johnston's welcoming address, Ruth Smith from Washington-Lee, and Sarah Lewis from Cathedral were elected chairman and secretary, respectively.

This election was followed by a movie demonstration of basketball technique. Miss Virginia Rath of Swarthmore College, president of the Eastern Society of Directors of Physical Education for Women, concluded the meeting with an address on "The Why and How of Athletics for Girls Today."

At 11 o'clock informal discussions under the direction of Margaret Graves, president of W. A. A.; Doris Dungan, and Lella Holley on "The Advantages of Having a Girls' Athletic Association and How to Organize One," intramural competition and "Awards and Points Systems" were held.

A cafeteria style luncheon with a well-rounded program did much to enhance the enjoyment of the occasion.

Margaret Graves, mistress of ceremonies, introduced Miss Lota Ing, G. W. student from Nanjing, China, who spoke on athletics in her country; the Glee Club quartet, including Ruth Keeler, Rosalind Lovell, Betty Grouzer, and Betty Whipple singing "Gianina Mia," and the Alma Mater, and a number of dance groups.

The Holten Arms' presentation was followed by a modern dance by Tatyana Jansy and Cecilia Couch from Orchestis. Miss Jansy also did a solo, "The Speaker."

An exhibition of proper physical habits, a fencing bout between Barbara Felker, and Hortense Morlin and reports from the various discussion groups completed the conference.

Imagine the surprise of Peggy Foote and John Nisbett, upon arriving at Peggy's apartment about two hours after the Sigma Kappa pledge dance to find Alice, Sally and Allan Crain sound asleep on the doormat.

You wayward S. A. E.s—you're going to be held down now, aren't you, with Bob Carnahan as official warden?

Hi Ruth Brewer's part in the last Cue and Curtain play, she had three letters to mail. The ones she used were addressed to Hinda Wauson, Ann Corio, and Sally Rand. We are wondering if Ruth is seeking practical advice on a professional stage career?

As a grand finale to Charlie Kiefer's stag party last Saturday night, can you imagine Charlie and Walter Rhinehart going for a stroll together? Charlie says a stag party has to be a good one, especially before a marriage.

Leftists Hear Wermel Speak About Spain

Speaker Charges Spanish War Involves Fascism Vs. Communism

Dr. Michael T. Wermel, economics teacher of the Department of Agriculture Graduate School, spoke to the Left Party on behalf of Spanish democracy Wednesday.

He outlined the history of the country from 711, when the Christians drove the Moors out of the country until the present.

Particular emphasis was placed on the entrance into politics of the Spanish branch of the Roman Catholic Church, as he claimed this was the cause of the church's abuses of power which made Spanish people leave it.

Having become powerful after driving out the Moors, the church became more and more interested in politics until finally it was tied up with the rulers in a definite alliance, helping to suppress all opposition which clamored for a desperate government.

Dr. Wermel announced that tonight there would be a meeting of the Friends of Spanish Democracy in the Masonic Temple, 33th St. at New York Ave., when the Spanish minister of education, Marcelino Domingo; minister to Sweden, Isabella Palencia, and a Catholic Father, Sarisoto, will speak for the Loyalists.

Physics Club Hears Seeger

Professor Gives Address on Relation of Physics To Philosophy

The Serendip Physics Club Friday night heard Dr. Seeger speak on physics in its relation to philosophy. This address was the concluding talk in a series in which physics was discussed in its relation to sociology, medicine, and chemistry.

At a previous meeting Dr. Wells of the Sociology department discussed with the group "Social Control of Mechanical Devices." In the interesting forum that followed the question was raised as to whether or not the "babe in swaddling clothes," as Dr. Seeger referred to sociology, could limit the unintelligent giant of invention.

At the next meeting the group hopes to start a new series of discussions on the principles of physics. A representative of the Bureau of Standards will speak on the physical aspect of color.

Two Pages From The University's First Year

COLUMBIAN COLLEGE and GENERAL CONVENTION.

It is the design of the Trustees of the College and Managers of the General Convention to render the institution at Washington a national benefit, as well as an object of general patronage. The course of study will be that of the most approved colleges in our country, including the Latin and Greek Classics, the Philosophy of the Mind and the Natural Sciences, and, indeed, whatever belongs to a liberal education. A Preparatory School, a Medical Department, and a Law Department, are contemplated, and into operation.

Finance for resources is the liberality and enlightened community, arising from subscriptions throughout the United States in this way has been recommended.

WILLIAM H. CRAWFORD, Secretary of the Treasury, JOHN C. CALHOUN, Secretary of War, WILLIAM WIRT, Attorney General of the United States, RETURN J. MEIGS, Post Master General, JOSEPH H. REXFORD, Commissioner of the General Land Office, SAMUEL N. SMALLWOOD, Mayor of the City of Washington, JOHN PETER, Mayor of the City of Georgetown, CHRISTOPHER REARLE, Mayor of the City of Alexandria.

The "Boston Patriot" kindly observes, that "the establishment of a College at the seat of Government was a favorite object with our Washington, as well as with other distinguished men of our country. The effort having now been made by the enterprise of individuals, their appeals to the favor of the public deserve at least a favorable hearing. Should success crown their efforts, the benefit which our whole country will derive, will be great and important. An institution for literary instruction at Washington, bringing together young men from the various quarters of our wide extended country, to meet as it were on neutral ground, removed from all their sectional feelings and prejudices, and placed within the immediate sphere of the operations of our national government, where they will learn both to love and to note the simplicity and regularity of its movements, an institution so situated will have a highly important and beneficial effect upon the stability of our union. It will be the source from which streams of national good will and brotherly love will flow through our happy land."

The Rev. Messrs. POOR, WOODS and STUART, Professors of the Theological Seminary at Andover, Massachusetts, have expressed the opinion that they "have no doubt that the establishment of the Columbian College, as an event of a likely to be of extensive and best interests of man."

The present beloved Chief, MOXON, President of the United States, has expressed the opinion that "there is good that the hopes of those who have contributed to advance it to its present position, not be disappointed," and that "this institution, if it receives hereafter the proper encouragement, cannot fail to be eminently useful to the nation."

In order that the charge for tuition may be moderate, and that charity students may be instructed gratis, it is intended to endow the Presidency of the College. The following plan is proposed for this purpose.

Obtain four thousand subscriptions, each $10, payable in hand, or when convenient, or when two thousand subscribers shall have been procured.

College Hill, District of Columbia, December, 1821.

The two pages above and to the left are from the University's first catalogue, published in 1821, its first year of operation. The only printed record of the University's first year, they were received by President Cloyd H. Marvin through the mail with a number of other old papers. These pages have been placed in vol. I of a complete set of University catalogues which is being compiled by the President.

Great Majority of Things Found Not Called For By Losers

By Arthur Branscombe

"Students lose this stuff. Some find it. The finders turn it in to us. It clutters up the place here and at the end of the year we turn it back to the finders—they'll take it." That, according to Allan R. Poore, clerk in charge of the University lost-and-found office, is the history of most of the articles which come into his office.

Turning, he threw open the doors of a big cabinet behind him, revealing shelves, compartments and drawers stuffed with hats, raincoats, footballs, billboards—with everything, in fact, from fancy dress costumes to women's hair curlers. Practically all of these articles will probably remain in the little office on the second floor of the business offices building until the end of the year—uncalled for, Poore thinks.

"I can't imagine why students don't come after them," he continued. "The slightest inquiry would certainly reveal that there is a 'lost-and-found' department here, and it should surely be worth while to someone to recover some of these things here."

$10 Fountain Pen

"There's a fountain pen there, worth at least $10," he pointed out, "and there's five raincoats hanging there which probably cost the owners at least $25 when they bought them, and most of them are practically unused."

There was a whole shelf-full of hats in the cabinet. New hats, old hats, brown hats, gray hats, nondescript hats—even a spotted white panama—waiting for their owners to claim them.

On the next shelf was a long row of books. German, Spanish, philosophy, physics, engineering. Shakespeare's works, all sorts of volumes on history, chemistry, and biology were gathered dust there.

On the next shelf were personal accessories. These included practically everything imaginable. Rings, keys galore (separately and in containers), powder puffs (a cologne package of 36 of those), oceans of queer articles diagnosed as hair-curlers, bracelets, varying from the 10 cent variety to the most expensive, fountain pens, from the two-bit style up to the aforementioned $10 vacuumatic article, all were gathered in blissful confusion. There was even a pair of eye glasses—minus a temple.

In the drawers beneath, Poore uncovered four scarfs, of both silk and wool, 16 and three-halves pairs what is a kiss without a kisser? The strike-breaking men of Columbia have come forward with the slogan, "Necessity is the mother of occupation." As you might have guessed, that motto has an economic background. It has been pointed out that "the co-ed may either kiss or walk back." After all, we're not giving any lifts to striking co-eds.

Kiss

Economics' Entry Strange

Why economics should enter into such a question is beyond us. Kisses are not bought and paid for as if they were so many onions. Our particular admiration goes out to the strike-breaking N. Y. U. co-ed who is doing her bit for occupation. She is on duty from 9 p.m. to midnight daily.

Thus you can see that this battle is not altogether one for men. In fact, most cordially do we invite Betty Co-ed of G. W. to join us. Name the day and hour if you'd like to be a strike-breaker.

And one more thing besides our motto. That's our theme song. We've decided on a waltz: "Kiss Me Again."

of gloves (yes, that fraction's possible), and a perky little brown and orange hat.

On the shelf below lay a football in a slightly emaciated and battered condition which, Poore smilingly explained, was not in the same status with the rest of the collection, having been "confiscated" from a group of boys who persisted in using it in the yard behind the business offices.

However, next to the football were lying five rather expensive articles, which had not been "confiscated"—ladies' umbrellas. Most of these were silk, with unusually ornamented handles, that indicated their value plainly.

On the last shelf, however, lay the prize of the collection—a fancy costume in a battered cardboard box which allows only the sight of tantalizing lace fringes and pink moustil folds to identify it.

Having revealed the present extent of the "collection," Poore hastened to say that the busy time of the year has not yet really started.

"This collection is still small," he emphasized. "During the bad weather in the winter the stuff really piles up. Why we've had as many as 40 of those hats in here at one time, and had that compartment where the raincoats are hung packed to the gills and other coats piled on the floor."

"Gosh, if we kept all the stuff that is turned in to us, we'd have to have a storeroom as big as this entire building to hold it all. That's why we turn it back to the finders or throw it away, at the end of the year."

former years. A successful dance was given Sunday at the Admiral Club for the benefit of the drive.

The L. G. Balfour Co. has donated a silver cup which will be presented to the group or fraternity on the campus making the largest per capita contribution to the drive, in the forms of both food and money. As announced last week, the minimum per capita contribution has been set at 50c, and the group contributing the largest percentage over and above this minimum will be awarded the cup. The cup has a gold lining, and stands 20 inches in height.

Names of needy families are to be submitted to the Food Drive Committee by the Associated Charities of Washington, the Tuberculosis Association of the District of Columbia and the Parent-Teachers Association. The status of these families will be investigated by the drive's social science committee, headed by Royce Franzoni. Others on this committee, whose appointments were announced Sunday, are:

Robert Evans, Willis Hurd, Herbert Wildman, Howard Mace, Roy Lever, and Winfield Rapkin.

A charity tea dance was held at the Admiral Club Sunday afternoon by Mrs. Margaret A. Petersen, proprietor of that club, who donated her services and the premises of the club to further the purpose of the drive.

Leon Brushloff, director of the University's band, donated the services of his swing orchestra.

Apparent Hobby of President Adds to G. W. Background

By William S. Cheatham

While we enjoy the recent improvements of the University and revel in anticipation of the recently evidenced prospective "seven league boot" strides of the near future, it is particularly interesting and gratifying to realize that we not only have an extensive and historic background, for which we may well be proud, but that original records or facsimiles thereof are being collected and attractively arranged by our President.

Pres. Marvin is justified in spending considerable time and effort in establishing this necessary adjunct to the University. However, when one is privileged to have Pres. Marvin personally show and explain his rare collection, the observer can readily discover by occasional glints and fond expressions, that Pres. Marvin has made our background his hobby.

In a special, handsome bookcase in his office, Pres. Marvin has a bound, gilt edge book for every year of the University's existence, or from 1821 to the present time. The volumes bearing the dates of recent years contain a complete set of the University's official documents, such as the Catalogue. Volumes dated prior to recent years contain sets of their respective years that are only partially complete, or in many instances the books are as yet mere dummies.

As friends of the University clean out old trunks and attics, and antique book stores all over the country find material of long ago about the University, interesting papers and pictures gradually find their way into the University vault, so that our posterity may not be handicapped by a lack of knowledge concerning our activity.

We are glad that we have a history and that we do not by necessity, feel like the newly rich.

Men Were Pledged at The Founders' Day Banquet Saturday

Alpha Chi Sigma, professional chemical fraternity, will initiate four men Saturday in Corcoran Hall at 8 o'clock. The men who will be initiated, and who were pledged last Saturday at the Founders' Day banquet are John Hague, Elmer P. Rucker, William Sager, and John Stark.

The banquet was attended by about 51 chemists and 31 student chemists including ten men from the University of Maryland. The toastmaster was Harry P. Newton, of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils, and the following men, all graduates of this university, spoke: Raymond Hann, Howard Jones, Henry Lepper, Russel McBride, Klare Markely, George Morey and James Taylor.

The speakers traced the history of the chemistry department here and the formation of the Alpha-Pi chapter of Alpha Chi Sigma on this campus.

Robert O'Connor, president of the local chapter, and Justin Padelford, president of the Maryland chapter, greeted the alumni.

The professional chapter presented a birthday cake to the collegiate chapters, this being the tenth anniversary of the installation of the local chapter.

Boeing Scholarships, consisting of four awards in flying courses with a tuition value of $11,000, will be offered this year in competition among undergraduate students in the United States who are interested in aviation as a career. The scholarships will be awarded on the basis of thesis competition.

First prize winner will receive a complete flying course, covering 250 hours of flight instruction, at the Boeing School of Aeronautics, Oakland, Calif.

Winners of the second, third, and fourth awards may choose one of a number of the school's technical and semi-technical courses, and in addition will receive 25 hours of dual and solo flight instruction.

Competition will be limited to male undergraduate students in good standing, who must be between 18 and 25, have normal eyesight, and be free of physical defects. They will submit a technical or non-technical treatise of 3,500 words or less on any aeronautical subject they choose.

Papers must be mailed on or before March 15, 1937. They will be judged by a committee headed by Dr. Baldwin M. Woods of the department of mechanical engineering, University of California.

Students interested in the competition should consult Dean Lapham of the School of Engineering.

Four Frat Quintets Battle For Honors In Court Tourney

Kappa Alpha and Acacia Tangle for League A Title Tonight; Phi Sigs, Sigma Chi Clash Tomorrow; Winners Meet Friday

TONIGHT and tomorrow night marks the climax in the Interfraternity basketball tournament when the two undefeated teams in each league clash to decide the finalists who will battle for the championship on Friday night at 9 o'clock.

Both squads have won four games by almost identical scores and seem well matched. They take the floor in the first game of the evening at 8 o'clock. The winner meets the League B winner on Friday night for the championship.

Games Go to Extremes The past week was marked by the two extremes of class, hard-fought battles and "walk-aways". In the first game last Tuesday Sigma Chi overwhelmed Theta Delta Chi by a score of 32-4. The Sigs displayed a fast-breaking attack, featured by excellent passing and fine team work. An hour later the S. P. E. quint trampled over the T. U. O. team in another lopsided game, the score being 25-4. The last game of the evening was a battle from start to finish between the undefeated Phi Sigs team and

Cubs Play Fifteen Games

Eight Tilts to Be Preliminaries to Varsity Contests

WITH the help of "Otts" Zahn's freshman five, spectators of at least eight of the varsity basketball team's home games will get "two for d'price o' one" this winter, the athletic department revealed yesterday, as it released the schedule for the freshman quintet.

No less than eight of the yearlings' prospective 15 games will be played as preliminaries to varsity contests this year. This innovation is expected to greatly increase interest in, and turnout for, the games concerned, since the freshman basketballers are considered to be fully as good this season as they were last, when they won 22 out of 24 games and the D. C. A. U. unlimited championship.

15 Games Scheduled At the present time, only 15 contests are definitely arranged for, but the two open dates will undoubtedly be filled during the next week. One, at least, of these will probably be a varsity-preliminary also. The freshman schedule does not, at first glance, seem to be as tough as last year's, but it is so studded with "meat" that an accurate estimate is impossible.

Four teams new to fans here will be encountered, namely: the Drexel Evening School varsity, a division of Drexel Institute, in Philadelphia; Fredericksburg High, of Fredericksburg, Va.; the Maryland University freshmen; and Massanutten Military Academy.

Relatively Unknown All four of these teams are relatively unknown quantities here and from them may, and probably will, come some opposition just as strong as was put up by the Rinaldi Tailors and others last year.

Such a calibre of opposition will be necessary, apparently, if the games are to be even interesting this year, judging by the way the frosh rolled effortlessly over a plucky, perspiring bunch of Devitt preppers in their opening game last Friday. With Charley Hockenberry, who shines on the football field in the autumn and on the court in winter as well, and Meyer Aaronson, All-New Jersey High guard, dumping in 11 and 13 points, respectively, the thing, whatever it was, was no contest.

Coach Zahn used everybody on the club, but the score still rose to 35-5 at the half, and mounted to 63-10 by the time the referee mercifully blew the closing whistle. ### Grid Team Best Offensive Unit In History

Vic Sampson Leads Runners by Gaining 466 Yards in 77 Tries

By Art Branscombe

DID you know that the 1936 edition of the Colonial football team was the best offensive unit in the school's history? Did you know, too, that it was the second best defensive team Coach Pixlee has ever turned out?

Statistics just gotten out by Jack (Einstein the Second) Espey, on the play of this year's eleven prove both points and give a very good reason why most observers consider this year's Buff and Blue machine the best in the school's history.

Gained More Than Mile They smashed tackles, pierced center and swept around enemy ends for a total of 2,198½ yards by rushing; then to make it decisive they sailed the sphereoid through the ozone for a total of 753 yards to pile up a grand total yardage gained of 2,951½ yards—which is fair in any league! At any rate, fair or great, it far surpasses the record of any other G. W. grid team.

At the same time the Buff Blasters were cracking their opponents' defenses in this manner they were holding them to 797½ yards by rushing and 1,538½ via the airwaves—which totals up to a mere 2,336 yards—not half what they were piling up for themselves.

Only Two Outrushed G. W. Incidentally, statistician Espey pointed out, only two of their opponents, Arkansas and Rice, gained more than 100 yards against the Buff. The 1934 team, heretofore regarded as about the tops here, held its opponents to 1,023 yards, but didn't roll up any 2,900 yards itself by a long shot.

Passing, the figures show, was almost twice as successful when attempted by their opponents. The Pixlee passers attempted 119 heaves and hit the bull's eye with 50 for a 42% average. Their rivals tried 143 times, on the other hand, and connected only 35 times, for an average of 24%.

Just as a sidelight, Mr. Espey pulled out of his natty black derby the fact that the Colonials intercepted 20 enemy passes and only had 11 of their own cut off. The effectiveness of this aerial defense was further illustrated by the fact that against Arkansas the Colonials intercepted no less than seven throws and held the Arkansas yardage-through-passing total to the lowest level of any team the Razorbacks played this year.

Frosh Five, Gonzaga, Play

Little Colonials Play Purple Thursday Away; Material Is Good

COACH ARTHUR "OTTS"

ZAHN's freshman quintet, one rather easy victory already behind it, goes out after their second straight triumph Thursday afternoon, playing Gonzaga in the Purple and White's gym, at 4 p.m.

Last year, in mid-season, Zahn, the University's youngest coach, and a fine basketball player in his own right, took over the reins of the frosh from Trainer-Coach Logan and guided them to the District A. A. U. championship in a series of spectacular extra-period games.

Over the season of 24 games, the frosh only lost two, both to the highly-touted Rinaldi Tailors, while still under the baton of Logan. And it was those same Rinaldi Tailors, in the finals of the A. A. U. tournament, that the Yearlings came back to beat, coached this time by Zahn.

Zahn Faces Problem This year, however, with a schedule whose toughness can only be guessed, Zahn is faced with a different problem. Instead of having a team all drilled and rolling along in fine shape for him to take over, he is having to build his club from the beginning.

He is blessed with a wealth of promising material, however. In the way of forwards he has four standouts, George Garber, Chick Hollidge, Bill Gubersky, and the laurels, both for total yardage, and average gain per try, to fleet little Vic Sampson, the sophomore speedster who ran opponents' ragged all season speeding around ends and off tackles. Vic piled up the impressive total of 466½ yards in 77 tries, for an average gain of 6.06 yards per try.

Close on Sampson's heels came big Herb Reeves and triple threat Joey Kaufman. Of these two, Reeves, who played every position in the backfield at one time or another, piled up the highest total yardage, 441½, as against 424½ for Kaufman. However, because he took 103 tries, and Kaufman only 97, Joey came off with slightly the best average gain honors, getting an average of 4.37 yards every time he carried the ball, against 4.28 yards by Reeves.

Jay Turner, the sophomore from next Oklahoma way, turned in the next best performance, statistically speaking. He battered and rammed his way up and down the field, picking up 204 yards for the Colonials. Since, however, it took him only 41 shots to gain this yardage, his average gain is a little better than either Reeves or Kaufman—almost five yards per try—4.97 to be exact.

Jenkins Averages 3 Yards

The other member of the regular ball-toter's company, George Jenkins, the master mind of the team while on the field, managed to step off the considerable sum of 185½ yards in an even 50 tries, which gave him an average of 3.70 yards per try to hang up beside the consistently high record of brainy field generalship he has compiled. Having dug up all this priceless wealth of information about your Colonials, Jack couldn't resist compiling some about their coach, Pixlee.

Here, awe-struck world, it is:

Before he came to the University, Coach Pixlee's teams had won 72 games, lost 27, and tied 6. From 1929 on, his Buff and Blue eleven have won 39, lost 18, and again tied 6. Thus, his complete life record adds up to 112 victories, 45 losses, and 12 deadlocks. This, all faithful figure-finders will see, as did Senior Espey, gives "Possum Jim" a batting average of .762, which as Mr. Espey would never dream of remarking, could be worse—could be a lot worse, in fact.

Basketers, Johnnies, Meet

Johns Hopkins Quintet Is First Opponent of Tough Schedule

Reinhart Without Regular Lineup—Says He's Glad of It!

Without a regular team—for which fact he is probably giving thanks—Basketball Coach Bill Reinhart, leads his squad into the hostile haunts of the Johns Hopkins Jaybirds Thursday, to open probably the toughest season any Colonial quintet has ever faced.

The paradox of Reinhart's being glad he hasn't any regular starting lineup is explained by the fact that he has so much promising material that he is, at present, unable to pick any "best" five without having this quintet surpassed by some other members of the squad.

Three Centers

He has no less than three centers to choose from—Hal Kiesel, Jack Butterworth, and Bruce Borum. Kiesel, of course, can always have the job any time he wants it, but it is no secret that Bill still thinks Hal would be even greater at forward than he is at the tap-off post. For this reason he is giving the other two every chance to make good and spending considerable time trying to develop himself another good center.

At forward the situation is also complicated by a lot of fellows hanging around trying to elbow themselves into jobs. There are Ben Goldfaden and Tommy O'Brien, back from last year and Bob Faris, and Pete Beronio, from last year's freshman five.

In the way of guards he has Walter Bakum, Clarence "Moe" Berg, the one and only "Mickey Mouse" Shonfeld, Orville Anderson, back from last year, and burly Sid Sikowitz and Joe Brennan from the freshman quintet.

Kiesel At Center

On the basis of form shown to date, the lineup probably would take about this complexion: Kiesel, until further notice, at center; O'Brien and Faris or Goldfaden at forwards; Shonfeld and Bakum at guard.

Another game has been added to the varsity schedule, it was announced during the week. The Demon Deacons of Wake Forest are scheduled for Thursday, January 14, in the gym, starting at 8 p.m. The freshman basketballers will meet Fredericksburg High in a game preliminary to this, starting at 7 o'clock.

Coincidentally with the news of the Wake Forest game came the news that the hoped-for contest with Utah State, champions of the Rocky Mountain Conference, was definitely off.

To the Rescue!

Riflers Shoot Hoyas, Friday

COLONIAL riflemen will meet the Georgetown marksmen in a shoulder-to-shoulder match for the first time in fifteen years at Georgetown on Friday, Jan. 15. Though the G. W. men have frequently opposed Georgetown in telegraphic matches as a part of the regular schedule of the middle league, but the two teams have not opposed each other on the same range since 1921.

The match on January 15 is a challenge match. Georgetown University was the challenger. Another challenge match will be shot with the team of the Washington Marine Barracks in Corcoran Hall on January 22. The regular league season begins the week ending February 13.

Washington can get Elzy Dean from the Cardinals for Travis, DeShong, Bucky Harris, and Clark Griffith... Despite George Washington's great year, not even a solitary All-American mention was received on the All-American board team... terous or peace. One party at its meeting voted to give the executive council power to bring out a report as a party one, and submit it as an amendment on the Union floor.

Left foreign relations policy was formed after listening to a very detailed report on the subject. This was a 25-page document on which a party committee had been working for two months. An eight-page brief of this report has been published by the party for all members of the Union and will be distributed tomorrow night. Members of this committee are Howard Ennes, Louis Lazaroff, Cy Rotenberg, and Albert Miller. This is the most elaborate and careful document yet prepared for any Union party, and with the probable exception of the tax measure last year, the most elaborate document submitted to the Union.

The foreign relations bill follows:

WHEREAS, relations among the nations of Europe and Asia today afford reason to believe that war is imminent; and

WHEREAS, such condition precludes the possibility of the success of any concerted action toward world peace at this time; and

WHEREAS, it thereby becomes necessary to insure the neutrality of the United States in the event of such war; therefore, be it

RESOLVED, by the Student Union of George Washington University in congress assembled, that whenever the President shall find that there exists a state of hostilities between or among two or more foreign states, he shall immediately proclaim such fact, and:

1. It shall thereafter be unlawful to export or transport merchandise of any kind to any port of such foreign belligerent states or to any neutral port for transshipment to or for the use of a belligerent country.

2. It shall thereafter be unlawful for any person within the United States to purchase, sell or exchange obligations of the Government of any belligerent country or of any person acting directly or indirectly for such Government, or to make any loan or extend any credit to any such Government or person aiding directly or indirectly such Government.

3. No citizen of the United States shall travel on any such belligerent vessel except at his own risk and no American vessel shall sail with such belligerent port as its destination except at its own risk.

4. The United States Government shall hold itself responsible for the lives of American citizens in countries for such period of time as the President shall prescribe; but the United States Government shall not hold itself responsible for property owned by American citizens in such belligerent countries.

5. Whenever the President shall find that special restrictions placed on the use of the ports and territorial waters of the United States by the vessels of a foreign nation will serve to maintain peace and shall make proclamation thereof, it shall thereafter be unlawful for any such vessel to enter a port or territorial waters of the United States or to depart therefrom except under such conditions as the President may prescribe.

6. For the purposes of administering this section and upon the enactment of this resolution the National Munitions Control Board shall be created which Board shall consist of the Secretary of State as chairman, and the Secretaries of the Treasury, War, Navy and Commerce; and every person who engages in the business of manufacturing, exporting or importing ammunition and implements of war shall register with the Board his business name and a list of such manufacturers in which he deals; and he shall be unlawful for any person to deal in such manufactures without first having obtained a license from this Board; and this Board shall take immediate steps to increase the facilities of the United States Government for the manufacture of arms, ammunition and implements of war.

7. In every case of the violation of any of the provisions of this Act such violator, upon conviction, shall be fined not more than $50,000 or imprisoned not more than ten years or both. Constitutional Amendment: It shall require a three-fourths vote of each house of Congress and a two-thirds vote of the people to declare war.

Nowak. In addition to these he has Charles Hockenberry, listed as a center, who will probably be moved over to forward since he is too valuable to be left out, and yet can hardly displace "Buddy" Shaner, the crack Eastern High pivot man.

For guards he has Myer Aaronson, Billy Mitchell, Sid Karp, Whitlow, and Jacobson.

Garber Stands Out

Standouts among these are Garber, who towers six feet two inches in his socks. George comes from James Monroe High, in New York City, where he was an All-High forward last year.

Shaner, and Hollidge, of course, have been two of the biggest reasons for Eastern High's phenomenal basketball success locally in the last three years. They form, already, the smoothest passing and scoring combine on the team.

Meyer Aaronson, who only got in part of the opening game, Friday, and yet scored 13 points in the time he was in there, comes from Union Hill High School, in Union City, N. J., the same town that donated Tommy O'Brien to Colonial courts. Aaronson also was an All-Star guard in New Jersey.

Hockenberry, who came to G. W. from Nemacolin, Pa., made a name for himself with his prodigious punting for the frosh footballers this fall. He was listed as a center, and stands an inch over six feet, but the fact that Shaner stands at least two inches over six feet, and is in some respects a better center, has led Coach Zahn to move Charley over to one of the forward posts, where his sharp-shooting propensities can still be utilized. The 11 points he hooped for the frosh Friday would seem to indicate that it's all right with him.

Two Give Paper At Med. Seminar

Dr. Edward Bright Vedder, professor of experimental medicine, and Mr. Charles Irving Rosenberg, research assistant in experimental medicine, gave a paper on "Hypervitaminosis A" Wednesday afternoon at the University Medical School seminar.

They discussed the effects of doses of oils containing Vitamin A, 25,000 international units to 100,000 international units, given to rats.

This was a progress paper and the work is not yet completed. Another paper dealing with further findings will probably be presented later.

The seminar was preceded by a tea at which Dr. Elizabeth Ramsey, associate in pathology, poured.

Prof. Croissant Speaks To Shakespeare Society

Anti-Smoking Movement Given Council Support

The Student Council gave its support to the administration's movement to reduce smoking in University buildings by a unanimous vote at the council meeting Wednesday. While not outlining a definite program, the council decided that its members, acting as individuals, would attempt to promote a feeling on the part of students against smoking in buildings.

Ross Pope, president of the council, said, "We do not feel that any fixed program of the council in this respect would be appropriate or effective as such, but we do feel that, as individuals, our efforts will act to reduce the amount of smoking in buildings."

Alumni on Committee

Philbirch McCoy, who received his bachelor and doctorate of laws degrees here in 1922 and 1923, and is counsel for the State Bar Association of California, has been re-appointed as a member of the committee on professional ethics of the American Bar Association.
